Victims of Cobblewood Road
By: N.R. Pollard
7/27/24

Josh was stumped.
He thought he had trumped,
All the false rumors and whispers downtown.
But he took a wrong turn down Cobblewood Road,
Now he can't get his rims off the ground.

Sandy felt vexed.
Downright perplexed,
She was going well under the limit.
Shrieking in fear as she plowed through that deer,
Maybe her husband knows how to skin it.

Tyler was hammered.
He spat up and stammered,
The trooper could smell he was drunk.
While fleeing in the rain,
He hydroplaned.
Wrapping his Honda around a tree trunk.